CIRCASSIAN WALNUT
From Russia.

The Highlands of Russia produce ten different varieties of this beautiful wood and yet because the species bears an edible nut the Russian folks are loath to part with their beloved trees. Please remember this fact as you glance at the splendid example of a period bureau whose picture we show above Observe that the lines are

ARTISTIC YET PRACTICAL.

Note also that there is extreme breadth to the top and unusual width in the four drawers and that the heavy plate glass mirror can be easily adjusted to yield a three quarter length view of one's figure.

There is the charm of great novelty in the handsome graining and rarity of the wood, yet the Titus methods of buying and selling places this Circassian Walnut Bureau in your chamber at the surprisingly low figure of - - - $33.75

PLATFORM STILL UNDER DISCUSSION.

Amendments by Progressives Generally Defeated.

Does Not Suit New Jersey Candidate for Governor.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 20.—The Republican state committee labored more than two hours this morning on a platform prepared by a sub-committee of that body for submission to the afternoon's state convention, which will select the party's candidate for governor, finally sending the platform back to the sub-committee for proper phraseology. A large number of amendments were offered, mainly by progressives, and nearly all were defeated.

It is understood that the platform as finally agreed upon does not make specific declaration for rate-making

ENEMY'S TORPEDO BOATS REPULSED.

Atlantic Fleet Shows How It Could Repel Attack.

Strenuous Day Battle Practice to Begin Wednesday.

ON BOARD U. S. S. BATTLESHIP KANSAS, at sea on southern drill grounds, by wireless via Portsmouth, Va. Sept. 20—After a night of successful battle practice in repelling the imaginary attacks from a flotilla of torpedo boats of a supposed enemy, the 16 battleships of the American Atlantic fleet today are swinging lazily at anchor, giving the officers and men a rest for the day, in order to be in trim for the strenuous work of day battle practice which will begin promptly Wednesday morning. While both officers and men were displeased at the long delay caused by the heavy weather which made impossible the towing of the target rafts by the small auxiliary craft, they were in a better frame of mind today, because of the possibility of more favorable weather for the day battle practice tomorrow. It is the intention of the commander-in-chief, Rear Admiral Schroeder, to rush this work and he hopes that all the vessels will have concluded their firing by Friday.

The repulse of the enemy's torpedo flotilla, during the night, was a spectacular bit of work. With conditions almost identical to those under which a hostile torpedo boat flotilla would make an attack on and attempt to sink the ships of the fleet, the 16 huge fighting machines last night demonstrated how they could repel an enemy's torpedo craft without permitting any of the pestiferous little vessels to get close enough to inflict serious damage.

Removal of Commissioner Baker Recommended.

Acting Mayor of New York Charges Insubordination.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Acting Mayor Mitchel has recommended that Police Commissioner Baker be removed, on the ground of inefficiency in protecting gamblers to flourish in the city unchecked. Mr. Mitchel said Commissioner Baker in a letter to him had showed insubordination.

The acting head of the local government says Mayor Gaynor had identical views with him in Commissioner Baker's case. "I saw Mayor Gaynor at St. James last night and laid before him the entire police situation, including Commissioner Baker's letter to me September 17," said Mr. Mitchel. "The mayor requested me not to make this letter public and to leave the police matter in abeyance until his return, which he promises will take place within a few days."

Mr. Mitchel admitted that he had recommended dismissal of Commissioner Baker, whose letter to him he considered insubordinate. The acting mayor, in his letter to the commissioner, called the latter's attention to "wide open" conditions in parts of the city, and demanded that the police act in suppressing the activities of gamblers and other law-breakers.

Commissioner Baker, in a statement at noon, said his letter to the acting mayor contained "nothing but a straightforward statement" of his attitude and there was no intention on his part to criticise or impugn the action of the acting mayor."

Investigation of the gambling situation was on the program for an informal hearing, with the assembling of the grand jury today. Among

SUITS, DRESSES, SKIRTS and WAISTS

Will take place on THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY.

Smart, fashionable, dressy and low priced are a few of the traits responsible for the popularity of our garment department.

Intelligent open-eyed buying has given us an assemblage of garments which is in exact harmony with each of Dame Fashion's most exacting rules.

Durable and desirable fabrics are represented in a diversity of styles in this gathering. These garments are all characterized by the exclusive distinguishment of the BEE HIVES style mark. But that isn't all—this individuality is coupled with unusually low prices. Each garment has dash and style, is perfectly man-tailored and superb fabrics used in their making and in viewing these points, notice how radically different many of the weaves and coloring effects are from what you see elsewhere.

Come Thursday, Friday or Saturday and you will surely see the garment you desire.

A TAFT-ROOSEVELT TRUCE.

Presidnet Opposes Bossism and Will Receive Endorsement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A conference which former President Roosevelt had today at New Haven with President Taft, at his own solicitation, and which took place after he had put his life in jeopardy by a trip in a frail motor boat across Long Island sound in a half-gale, and had used up three motor cars in his dash to keep his appointment, was absolutely barren of results as to any better understanding between them relative to national issues and their personal relations.

A compromise is said to have been reached, however, in the New York state fight, the President expressing hearty sympathy with the battle against "bossism," and his predecessor giving to him an assurance that the Taft administration will be endorsed at the Saratoga convention. In the truce which was arranged in the New York situation no mention of Mr. Taft as a candidate in 1912 will be made by the New York Republicans at their state gathering.

With this understanding matters will move along until after the state convention, and after that is over events will shape themselves. Colonel Roosevelt himself is said to have let drop the hint that as to his side of the matter "something would be doing" after the election. Mr. Taft is letting 1912 look out for itself. He declares he has other matters of concern at the moment.

Today's meeting of the present and former chief executives was their second since Colonel Roosevelt returned from Africa and would not have taken place, it is said, unless the colonel had sought it.

It was plain from all that happened before and after the meeting that Colonel Roosevelt and his close political advisers are not a little worried over the situation in New York and came to the President for further evidence of his moral support. This the President was glad to give. He "laid his position in the New York state fight had been clear from the very first, and declared that the war on "bossism" had his cordial approval.

The President reiterated the statements he made in his letter to Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York County Republican committee, at the time of the Sherman-Roosevelt controversy over the temporary chairmanship. This letter, he added, stated his position fully and accurately and he was standing on it absolutely.

Mr. Taft repeated anew to his callers what he said in the Griscom letter—that he favored direct primaries for the nomination for Congressman and state legislators. He understands this to be the purport of the Cobb bill as amended by the Seth Low and Joseph Choate memorial. He said he hoped that a declaration for such a primary law would be written into the Republican state platform and that a candidate for governor in sympathy with this movement would be nominated.

President Taft is not ready yet to admit the advisability of doing away with conventions for the nomination of state officers from governor down. Mr. Taft understands that both Governor Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt are now practically in accord with his own position, although the governor fought at first for direct primaries for all offices.

President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt did not discuss the question of the Presidency in 1912. The President has not been advised as to what Mr. Roosevelt's attitude is toward that campaign. From sources close to the President it was learned that there was no occasion to discuss this subject.

Mr. Taft's position is this: He is willing to run if nominated. If his friends think there is a good chance for him to be re-elected, Mr. Taft feels that they will see to his nomination. Mr. Taft's political friends say if the American people want him for a second term not even Colonel Roosevelt can prevent his nomination. If the people do not appear to want him Mr. Taft will be only too glad to submit their decision.

The President is entirely satisfied with the position he has taken. He is not out hunting for delegates or endorsements for renomination. Even the thought that Colonel Roosevelt may be in the fight against him does not appear to disturb the President in the least degree. He feels every man is at liberty to do as he pleases, Colonel Roosevelt among the rest.

There is no doubt, however, that the shadow of 1912 hung over today's gathering. There was not the cordiality of old between the President and the colonel. It was the first time they had met since the story was given out at Oyster Bay that Colonel Roosevelt felt Mr. Taft had not dealt fairly with him in New York and had "sold out to the bosses" there in return for a pledge of delegates in 1912. The President felt the injustice of that story keenly, it is said, and as the result of the relations between him and Mr. Roosevelt can hardly be the same again.

Today's conference was a source of much gratification to Mr. Taft and his friends. That his aid should be sought at this time and in the manner that it was, after a somewhat recent attitude of almost complete ignoring of his administration or existence, probably gave to the President much satisfaction.

COURT RESTRAINS BALLINGER.

Secretary Accused of Re-Opening Land Case Without Authority.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior, was sued in the supreme court of the District of Columbia today by Emerson B. Smith, a realty operator of New Mexico, who complains that after giving a final decision in his favor in a case involving valuable land adjoining the town of Clovis, N. M. acquired by Smith at a cost of $3,000, the Secretary re-opened the case without authority of law and awarded the land to another, who seeks to oust Smith upon a technicality.

The Secretary was restrained from carrying his decision into effect pending a hearing which was set for September 29.

PROGRESSIVES CLAIM VICTORY.

Griscom's Friends Say They Will Have 570 of 1,015 Delegates.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The claim that the progressives will control 570 of the 1,015 delegates in the Republican state convention, a working majority, was made tonight by close friends of Lloyd C. Griscom, who is managing Theodore Roosevelt's campaign against the "Old Guard."

Delegates in 26 Assembly districts of Manhattan and the Bronx were elected tonight. For the most part the district meetings recorded the will of the voters as expressed in last week's primaries. From present indications the Roosevelt-Griscom faction will have a large majority of the 190 delegates from New York county.

In several districts resolutions were adopted endorsing the administrations of President Taft and Governor Hughes and pledging support to Colonel Roosevelt for temporary chairman.

NAVAL STATIONS INSPECTION.

Secretary Meyer to Make Tour of Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A comprehensive tour of investigation, stretching from New York to the Pacific coast and to Cuba, will be made by Secretary of the Navy Meyer immediately after the cabinet conference here next week. It will go from New York to Chicago to inspect the Great Lakes naval station, thence to the Bremerton naval station on Puget sound, then to Mare Island, Cal., and over the southern route to New Orleans and Pensacola. Following an inspection at Knight's Key, Mr. Meyer will go to Cuba to observe conditions at the Guantanamo naval station, and then expects to come directly home in time to cast his vote in Massachusetts, in the election November 8.

RECOMMENDED BY BRISTOW.

Progressive Republican Appointed Postmaster at Salina, Kas.

SALINA, Kas., Sept. 19.—George M. Huff, a progressive Republican, was today notified of his appointment by President Taft to the position of postmaster here. He was recommended by Senator Bristow. The appointment was dated September 15, the day a letter was issued from Beverly saying that the President intended to be impartial in his attitude towards progressives and regulars in the matter of patronage.

The President has re-appointed T. D. Fitzpatrick, the incumbent, but the Senate failed to confirm the appointment. Congressman W. A. Calderhead, Fitzpatrick's backer, was defeated for re-nomination by a progressive.

The Purest Spring Water is the Base of Clicquot Club GINGER ALE

NO water in the world equals the celebrated Clicquot Spring water for making soft drinks. Chemists testify to this. Coming from deep rock, it contributes largely to the famous goodness and purity of CLICQUOT CLUB Ginger Ale.

No other water will combine so perfectly with Jamaica ginger or result in so good a ginger ale. No other water in the world will take carbonic gas so readily or retain it so well.

Because of this superior water and because the ginger, sugar and fruit flavors in Clicquot are the best, Clicquot Club is as good a year after it is made as the day it is bottled. It is as palatable too, as it is wholesome and refreshing and it is non-astringent.

PRE-ANNOUNCEMENT.

With the close of Saturday, September 17, the Public Sale on our stock ceased, and having practically liquidated our former stock we are enabled to start the season with a NEWER and CLEANER stock.

There will be no old styles, or merchandise carried over from last season, these have been disposed of and liquidated at our stupendous public sale, the stock presented will be NEW the best and latest that foreign and domestic markets can supply. Our New York buyer has for weeks been busily engaged, placing orders, and a member of the firm has left for the Metropolis of our markets to personally superintend these tremendous purchases. We intend to make this "The Shopping Place" of Newport and shall endeavor to present such a collection of high grade merchandise that will satisfy the demands of the most discriminate fashion devotee, and at prices that will transpass the most daring expectations of the shrewdest and most exacting shoppers. Fast freight and express are already showering shipment after shipment upon us, and as soon as the huge purchases have been completed and arrived we shall inaugurate

Comstock Declines to Run for Congress and Favors Green.

Cooney a Candidate in the Second District—Changes in Democratic State Ticket Probable.

Richard B. Comstock of Providence declares that he is not a candidate for Congress from the First district and advocates the nomination of Theodore Francis Green to oppose Congressman William P. Shotfield, Republican. Thomas F. Cooney of Cranston is out with a statement that he is again a candidate for the Congressional nomination by the Democrats of the Second district. The entrance of Mr. Cooney into the list of candidates portends a fight between him and Joseph McDonald of Pawtucket, an announced candidate. Mr. Cooney was Mr. Capron's opponent in 1908 and was defeated at the election by 5740 votes, carrying only the towns of Cumberland and Scituate. Both Mr. McDonald and Mr. Cooney are looked upon by the Democrats as strong candidates. The former gained prominence in the General Assembly as a Democratic member and statistician whose special interest was in analyzing the tariff figures. His platform centres upon a downward revision of the tariff schedules.

The appointment of Thomas A. Carroll and Edmund Walker as two members of the Democratic committee to survey the field of likely candidates is taken by prominent Democrats to mean that the state ticket be presented at the state convention will be entirely different from that of last year, Peter C. Cannon who is also a member of that committee, may not be a candidate for office, it is inferred, because of his appointment to judge of the other candidates. Thomas A. Carroll was last year the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor and Edmund Walker sought election as general treasurer. These two positions at least, Democrats believe, will be sought by others than Messrs. Carroll and Walker this year.

On their way to attend the forty-fourth national encampment at Atlantic City, N. J., this week, scores of Grand Army men from Rhode Island left Providence Monday. Six special parlor cars were occupied by the Department of Rhode Island, and these were attached to the Colonial Express. A few minutes later, the special train of the Department of Massachusetts, gayly decorated with the national colors, pulled into the Union station. A few Grand Army men from this state were awaiting for this train, as many of their former comrades and friends were on board. The special was made up of 14 parlor cars. The station was a scene of activity, as the veterans of the Civil war, accompanied by their wives and friends, gathered in the waiting room and spent the time while waiting for the train in renewing old acquaintances. The veterans wore the Grand Army uniform, while many of the women carried small American flags pinned to their waists. The official Rhode Island party was headed by Department Commander Charles H. Ewer and Assistant Adjutant General Philip S. Chase. For a number of years it has been the custom of the officers of the Department of Rhode Island to make as much of a pleasure tour as possible of the annual journey to the national encampment. This year it has been decided to continue the trip to Philadelphia and the battlefield of Gettysburg. The Rhode Islanders will leave Atlantic City for the Quaker city next Saturday and spend next Sunday at Gettysburg. They will return home next Monday evening.

William P. Goodwin, bank examiner, who in June, 1909, was appointed receiver of the Kingston Savings Bank, was Monday continued as temporary receiver until next April by Judge Brown at the opening of the September session of the superior court for Washington county at West Kingston. Assistant Attorney General Harry P. Cross, representing the bank examiner, made the request for the continuance of the temporary receivership, stating that the deficit was gradually being reduced under the care of Mr. Goodwin and he entirely wiped out. B. W. Case Mr. Goodwin became temporary receiver, the deficit was $28,931.89 and up to last Saturday this had been reduced to $19,629.91. He said Mr. Goodwin believed that within a year the deficit will be entirely wiped out. B. W. Case, representing a number of the depositors, said it was entirely satisfactory to have the temporary receivership continued. The court therefore ordered that Mr. Goodwin be continued as temporary receiver until the April session of the superior court for Washington county, which is the third Monday in April, 1911.

Governor Pothier, in a letter to the American Peace Society concerning the projected celebration of the centenary of peace between the United States and Great Britain, lends his approval to any joining of the United States and Great Britain, lends his approval to any joining of the United States and Canada in a demonstration which will tend to promote more cordial relations between the states and the provinces. The governor holds that the proposed celebration would tend to bring Canada and the United States into closer relations and declares his belief that anything of this sort would tend also to increase commerce and promote trade relations with the Dominion. Governor Pothier's letter was one of nearly two score letters from prominent men in connection with the proposed observance, several of which contain suggestions bearing upon the features of the celebration and all approve the idea.

At a meeting of the Cranston school committee Monday infantile paralysis was placed on the list of diseases for which children may be prohibited from attending school. The attention of the school authorities has been called to this disease by the case of Principal Walter H. Tabor's family in Arlington. Mr. Tabor's son is sick with the disease, and the father is at home on account of it. The Cranston health officer took up the matter and after a consultation had been held with Dr. Swartz of the State Board of Health and Dr. Chapin of the Providence board, Mr. Tabor was told that he could not teach and live at home. This amounted to a quarantine, for Mr. Tabor decided that he would not be separated from his family. There are two other children in the Tabor family and they are away from school. Infantile paralysis has not yet been legally placed among the diseases classed as contagious or infectious, although doctors have decided it to be highly so. The formal order passed by the Cranston school committee was that teachers should not allow in school children from families where cases of infantile paralysis exist. Cranston has had one death from the disease and one other case besides that of the Tabor boy.

The Baptist Ministers' Meeting of Providence and vicinity, Monday placed itself on record as opposed to the proposed changes in the Brown University charter, by which the denominational features would be eliminated. The question was discussed for an hour preceding the adoption of the resolutions, which were proposed by Rev. Thomas E. Bartlett of Pawtuxet. The tenor of the meeting is said to have been strong in opposition to the proposed change.

J. D. E. Jones of Providence and the Wannamoisett Country Club remains tennis champion of Rhode Island. Supplementing his triumph Saturday, when with the aid of Stanley Henshaw he wrested the doubles title from Gross and partner, who had held it for three years, Jones once more established his right to premier ranking by defeating Russell N. Dana of Pawtucket, a fellow club man, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1, Monday, at the Agawam Hunt.

Otis A. Jenks, well known in Odd Fellowship and an old-time jeweler, died suddenly at his home at Eden Park, Sunday night. He was stricken soon after retiring and died before a physician could be summoned. Mr. Jenks had been a sufferer for many years from locomotor ataxia and for three years past from valvular heart disease, but was about his house and grounds as usual Sunday. He was a member of Phillips Memorial Free Baptist Church, of the Eden Park Volunteer Fire Company, a member for 40 years of Canonicus Lodge, I. O. O. F., a past grand of that organization and a member of Moshassuck Encampment, having been chief patriarch Mr. Jenks was well known as an old-time jeweler, working at his trade of gold ring maker for 30 years, but was forced to abandon it 15 years ago as his hands became affected by the progress of his disease.

The Massachusetts board of highway commissioners Monday suspended for a period of three months the license to operate an automobile held by Mrs. Maude H. Walker of Providence. It is found by the Bay State authorities that she operated her car in an improper manner August 17 at Oak Bluffs, Martha's Vineyard, and that her driving was responsible for a collision with another machine driven by an Oak Bluffs physician. She is the wife of Dr. P. Francis Walker of Providence. Mrs. Walker declared that the finding revoking her license to drive was unjust, asserting that the driver of the other machine, and not she, was to blame for the accident.

Martin V. Cass of Woonsocket left Monday for Indianapolis, Ind., where he will represent the Rhode Island Barbers' Commission at the national convention of barbers' unions. Matters concerning the barber laws in the various states and other questions of importance will be considered.

EQUINOCTIAL STORM DELUSION.

[Boston Transcript.]

The autumnal equinox is three days distant, but probably a number of thousand intelligent and usually well informed people expressed the opinion this morning, when they awoke and found the wind in the northeast and the sky darkened by a heavy cloud curtain, that the equinoctial storm was impending. This has been the easy way of accounting for the heavy storms that frequently occur at this season of the year. It rests upon the traditions of centuries. It is a confusion of cause with coincidence. We have outgrown to a reasonable extent our fear of witchcraft and our faith in astrology, but still hold fast to the belief that when the sun crosses the line it works a dynamic and disturbing influence upon the elements. Science has repeatedly sought to correct this groundless impression, but thus far with only indifferent success. * * * As a matter of fact there have not been in 200 years more than a dozen storms in close connection with the equinox. As many as that could have been connected with any other arbitrary date at this season of the year.

PERSONALS.

....Mrs. Edward Roby, founder of the National Branch of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, and a member of the daughters of the American Revolution, died at her home in Chicago Sunday night, after an illness of six months. She is survived by her husband, Edward Roby, founder of the town of Roby, Ind.

....Everybody who has read "Elizabeth and Her German Garden" will be sorry to hear of the death of the author's husband, who figures therein so amusingly as the "Man of Wrath." The author is an English woman, formerly Miss Annette Beauchamp, of the family of which Sir Reginald Proctor Beauchamp, of Langley Park, is the chief, and her husband, whose death has just occurred, was Count Henning von Arnim, the only son of that German ambassador, Count Harry von Arnim, who was the object of such bitter persecution on the part of Prince Bismarck.

....Sudden illness on the part of Edward Abeles, an actor, left "The Aviator" company at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, without a leading man just before the curtain went up one night last week. Quick thought and action on the part of John Madden, the stage manager, produced James Montgomery, author of the play, who was captured as he sauntered leisurely into the foyer, hurried beyond the scenes, and induced to "make up" and take the leading part. Familiar with the lines from hearing and seeing the piece oft repeated, Mr. Montgomery carried out the part well.

....James Clark McGrew, who claimed the distinction of being the oldest ex-Congressman in the United States, ... dead at his home in Kingwood, W. Va., in his ninety-eighth year. Death came unexpectedly from heart failure, following the celebration of his ninety-eighth birthday last Wednesday. He served in the Forty-first and Forty-second Congresses and was one of the 55 Unionists in the famous Richmond convention who opposed secession from Virginia. He was remarkable in many particulars. After his eightieth birthday he learned to operate a typewriter and conducted his own correspondence.

FAREWELL SUMMER.

[The Wild Aster.]

[Cecil Cavendish, in St. Nicholas.]

In the meadows near the mill,
By the wayside, on the hill;
In the fields that wander down
To the edges of the town,
And beside the farm house door,
"Farewell summer" blooms once more.

Little asters blue and white,
Many as the stars at night;
Summer's flowers have blown away;
Now you come to make us gay.
When the fields are growing brown,
And the leaves come fluttering down.

How I love to gather you,
Purple flowers and white and blue.
On the cloudy afternoons
When the wind makes pleasant tunes
In the orchard grasses dry,
Where the ripened apples lie.

Dear to me are days of spring,
And the summer makes me sing;
Winter has its times of cheer,
But the best days of the year
Come when, close beside our door,
"Farewell summer" blooms once more.

PANCIES.

There are some people so terribly uppish that it seems impossible to down them.—[Philadelphia Bulletin.

George (in automobile)—Fifty miles an hour! Are you brave
Evelyn (after swallowing another pint of dust)—Yes, dear. I'm full of grit.

"Will ye loan me yer bike, Jimmie?"
"I dassent loan it to ye, 'cos it ain't mine, but I guess maybe it'd be all right to rent it to ye."—[Life.

"Jones," said the physician, "your wife is all run down."
"Not at all surprised, doc," answered Jones, "our neighbors do a lot of talking."—[Buffalo Express.

"What's the matter with him? Has he got rheumatism?"
"No, the girl he is engaged to wears a bobble skirt, and he got that walk from trying to keep step with her."—[Houston Post.

"Do you believe in re-incarnation?"
"No," replied the student of occult. "I haven't the imagination to follow the man with a snub nose and queer whiskers who insists that he used to be Julius Caesar."—[Washington Star.

"Why did you tell me you were working your way through college?"
"I am."
"But nobody seems to know about it."
"Certainly not; my work consists of getting money from dad."—[Buffalo Express.

"Why don't you fix up your dwelling?"
"It's a matter of pride with me," replied Mr. Cornstosse. "Times are pretty good with me now, and I don't want these people comin' around sayin' 'Ain't that a neat farmhouse!' I want 'em to say 'Ain't that a cute bungalow!'"—[Washington Star.

Paris will in a few months have a new street. It will be called the Rue Edouard VII, after "the most Parisian of kings," and as a fashionable shopping and lounging thoroughfare it will probably rival the Rue de la Paix.

BLOCKADED.

Every Household in Newport Should Know How to Resist It.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best proof, for it comes from Newport.

Mrs. Sarah E. Freeman, 21 Warner Street, Newport, R. I., says: "My nephew was more or less troubled by backache for some time. Often it kept him awake at night, and in the morning he arose feeling stiff and lame. In addition to backache other difficulties existed which left no doubt that his kidneys were affected, and wholly responsible for his suffering. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, he procured a box at Wright & Hay's Drug Store and their use brought results that proved them to be a remedy of great merit."

THE POLICE AND POLITICS.

Is the do-nothing policy of the Newport police department the development of a simple disinclination to do anything unless forced to act, or is it a settled purpose with an object to be secured? While the former is the more agreeable explanation of the matter, although not a very desirable idea to have settled upon the community, it hardly fits the case. One realizes that the patrolmen will do nothing if they are not expected to do anything, and with them the explanation may be that their inactivity is quite involuntary. With the men higher up, those who shape the policy of the department, who are charged with and held responsible for its work, it is likely to be quite different. In them there is apparent also the same disposition to do nothing, to let things go along as smoothly as possible, and to avoid all friction—but is this all?

There are suspicions, and not a few more tangible evidences, that there are political reasons behind this do-nothing policy, that those in control of the force are looking for votes and conducting the department along the lines of least resistance for a continuance in power. It looks upon the surface like a catering to those who are likely to assist in the city election to a perpetuation of the present administration, a yielding to those who are willing that the laws should be loosely enforced, and those who wish no enforcement of certain laws. It is quite evident that certain laws, obnoxious to a small proportion of the community, are not enforced, and equally evident that the police department must know that they are not enforced, and undoubtedly knows why they are not enforced. There is open violation of the liquor laws, there is gambling on a small and large scale, there is little or no attempt to arrest automobilists for exceeding the speed limits, and other infractions of the statutes, which if enforced would perhaps hurt somebody's business, and there must be a reason for this.

The people of Newport have a right to know why certain persons are allowed to do as they wish and why the police make no effort to stop law breaking. Some time perhaps they will try to find out. If they care enough about it to try. Meanwhile it is well, perhaps, to ask why things are as they are, and who is responsible. Then possibly there may be an effort for a change.

AS TO BALLINGER.

If the Secretary of the Interior is still determined to hold his office till the President or his colleagues of the cabinet shall ask him to resign, he is making a serious mistake and doing an injustice to his friends. Ballinger has not been corrupt and has probably complied with the letter of the law in all cases; whether he has complied with its spirit is the matter under dispute. There isn't much doubt that so many people think he has been more friendly to individual interests than to those of the government that his resignation would be popular. If this widespread opinion does him an injustice, he cannot improve the situation by holding his office. People who think badly of him will go on thinking badly of him, but while he stays in office they will also go on thinking badly of the President for not turning him out, while if he were out of office all disposition to criticise the President would be removed.

The question which Ballinger ought to consider is not whether the President will permit him to remain in office, but whether he will help or hurt the President by remaining in office. He has committed no crime of which he could be convicted, and has perhaps done nothing which would make it necessary for the President to dismiss him. Yet it may be true that the President would be glad to satisfy public opinion by being rid of him, and he ought to have enough regard for the President to take himself out of the way, or at least to make it easy for the President. If he should offer his resignation on account of his health or the pressure of his private business it would probably be a relief to the President, and the minority of the committee which has been investigating him might be willing to sign a moderately friendly report, which they certainly will not do if he shall hold on.

There is no question of crime or confession, but there is a question of political expediency, or popular confidence in the administration, and of what is due between gentlemen, friends and associates in politics.

EXPERTS ON THE FARM.

It is surprising that the average farmer is so slow to avail himself of the assistance and services of experts in that occupation. This is not so in business and ought not to be true in agriculture. The manufacturer and the leader in any form of industry manages his own business, but secures all the trained men he can afford to show him how to superintend his departments, and so it should be in the business of farming. The trouble in the latter case, however, is that the ruts are so deep and the tendency to run in the same furrows so strong that it seems to many farmers to mean almost a revolution to give up any part of their work except the most menial to any one else. The average agriculturist is inclined to think he knows as much as any one else about the business and can be taught nothing by any one. He appears to feel that he has learned all there is to learn about the farm and how to conduct it by living on it and working it, and that nothing can be gained by assistance from outside; that it is preposterous even to think that one who has had no actual experience on a farm can give any information which will be of value to one who was born and brought up in the country.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that this is one of the principal causes why the farmer has not forged ahead in his business to the same extent as men in other industries. It would seem ridiculous even to a farmer for a railroad magnate or the head of any form of mechanical industry to try to run the whole business himself and refuse to avail himself of the services of men as heads of his departments who have been trained especially for those lines of work. Even the agriculturist would consider it folly for such a man to try to give his personal attention to every branch of his big business and turn a deaf ear to an expert who offered advice and was willing to take off the hands of the general manager the care of special departments. Yet that is just what the farmer is doing in his business. He is trying to run the whole industry himself without the services of trained men to take charge of the special departments, and the result is slow advance or no advance at all in his financial condition.

It is natural perhaps that the old view of agriculture should be lost to sight slowly and that the farmer should fail to understand what he has never been taught before—that his industry, like all others, is made up of departments. The idea that it is not divisible was born years ago, when the farmer was so isolated that he was obliged to rely upon himself and do every kind of work on his farm. Those days have now passed in most agricultural communities and it is no longer necessary except in comparatively rare instances, for a farmer to take entire charge of his whole business. The industrial world has been more rapid in the development of its business into departments, but it is nevertheless the secret of successful farming in the present day that the work is divided and an expert, a trained man, is placed in charge of each part, while the owner manages the whole and oversees the entire industry.

This may seem unnecessary and indeed impossible on a small farm, and it is in so far as the employment of an expert for each department is concerned; but it is still essential in theory and practice, in the sense that if a farmer does not need a number of trained men for his few acres he must in order to be successful become a trained man himself in all departments of his small farm. He must learn the modern methods of the dairy, the care of poultry, the cultivation of fruit and the various other departments of his work. If he does not do this he will soon see his neighbors who train themselves or employ trained men forging far ahead in prosperity. The future farmer as well as the future employer in any walk in life must be an expert himself or employ those who are experts. This is the law of industry today and the agriculturist cannot expect to violate that law and win success in his form of industry.

ENGLAND'S INDUSTRIAL UNREST.

England is becoming alarmed over the industrial situation, fearing a great labor war. Three of the country's leading industries—coal, cotton and shipbuilding—are threatened by strikes, which would not only involve a large number of men and others dependent upon them for support but would impair the value of the products. The relations between employers and employed have become definitely hostile, and in each case the cause is similar. Small sections of workingmen have defied the agreements entered into by the trade as a whole, and their action threatens to paralyze the entire industry. The Morning Post shows its alarm by announcing that the serious unrest in the ranks of labor has brought the country to the brink of a disaster difficult to parallel in industrial history.

Passaic, N. J., has nearly doubled its population in ten years. In 1900 it had 27,477 inhabitants and the recent census gives it 54,773, a gain of 97.2 per cent. Schenectady, N. Y., shows a gain of 129.8 per cent; Flint, Mich., 194.3 per cent; Muskogee, Okla., 494.2 per cent, and Oklahoma City 539.7 per cent. Of the two Oklahoma cities, Muskogee does not appear in the 1890 census, and its population of 4,254 in 1900 is increased to 25,278, while Oklahoma City, which had only 4,151 in 1890 and 10,037 in 1900, has now a population of 64,205.

The Democratic leaders in New York are waiting anxiously to hear from Mayor Gaynor regarding the nomination for governor. They are nearly all of the opinion that an announcement from the mayor himself that he would accept such a nomination would clear the atmosphere at once, as no other candidate is inclined to present himself with the chance that Gaynor will become the party nominee, or could hope to defeat him in the convention.

The city of Flint, Mich., has large automobile industries and the benefits are shown in its rapid growth. In 1890 it had only 9,803 inhabitants, and in the next ten years its population increased to 13,103, a gain of 33.7 per cent. In the last ten years, when the automobile manufacture had been established, the increase was to 38,550, a gain of 194.2 per cent.

It is remarkable that a woman, 91 years old, should have the physical strength and mental ability to make such an address as Mrs. Julia Ward Howe gave at the meeting of the Civic League, but Mrs. Howe is a remarkable woman. The News prints the address in full, in this issue.

The estate of the late Isaac C. Wyman of Salem, Mass., which was given to Princeton University for the founding of a graduate school, and was believed by some to amount to $10,000,000, has been found to be less than $3,000,000. This will probably serve the purpose.

The owners of the soap factory, burned to the ground early this morning, have shown a commendable spirit in proceeding without delay to rebuild and continue the business. That is the kind of stuff which makes successful enterprises.

If, after reading Mayor Gaynor's manly letter to his sister, people still read and believe the Hearst newspapers, they must have "wicked or disordered" minds.

Waverly, Mass., is becoming quite a place since President Taft began to spend his summers there. It is to have a new $57,000 postoffice.

The dressmakers' convention has decided that the hobble skirt must go. It never ought to have come.

GAIN IN MEMBERSHIP.

Church Data for America, Never Before Collated, Now Given by the National Government.

Church data for America, never before collated not even by the religious bodies themselves, is now given by the national government. It relates to the year 1906, but is now first made public, and it is necessary to add considerably to it, especially in membership and gifts, because the past five years have been phenomenal in church development and growth. Furthermore, the figures given by the government are, upon its own statement, incomplete because all would not be induced to furnish reports. Therefore about a fifth ought to be added to all of the figures given.

The salaries of ministers, proportions of debts to valuation of church property in various cities, ratios of Protestant and Roman Catholics in different states and cities, home and foreign missionary work and Sunday school memberships—all these are new. The government finds the number of persons who actually belong to some religious body as members to be about one-third of the whole number, and that this proportion is slowly increasing. It is now higher than ever before, and gains steadily even if slowly upon the population. These membership figures have, however, been published widely. The other data has not been published at all, for it is just now given out by the government.

In continental United States there are four principal cities that have 60 per cent or more of their population in actual membership in the churches. These four are Louisville, Boston, Providence and Fall River. At the other extreme are also four cities which show proportions far below the average for the country, one of them, St. Joseph, Mo., averaging only about 20 per cent. The other three are Memphis, Toledo and Omaha. Cities having more than half their populations in the churches are Pittsburg, Syracuse, Scranton, Detroit, New Haven, Buffalo, Worcester and St. Paul. Of the other cities, all below 50 per cent, the government finds as follows: Milwaukee 48, Cincinnati and St. Louis 40, Washington 48, New York 43, Columbus 42, Baltimore and Chicago 40, Newark and Philadelphia 39, Indianapolis and Denver 38, Minneapolis 35 and Cleveland 31.

MRS. SHEPARD'S WILL.

Gives Large Sums for Charities and Private Bequests Include Many to Newport Residents.

The will of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Shepard, widow of Thomas P. Shepard of Providence, who died in Newport a short time since was filed for probate in Providence Monday. It makes many public and private bequests, among the most important of the charitable legacies being $10,000 each for Butler Hospital and the Rhode Island Hospital.

Other public bequests include the Providence Charitable Fuel Society, $5,000; St. Elizabeth Home, $2,000; Rhode Island Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $1,000; a fund the income of which is to be applied to the general uses of the Home for Aged Colored Women, and in case of the failure of such beneficiary the same sum to the Rhode Island Hospital, Providence Association for Ministry to the Sick, $4,000, and in case of failure of this object the same sum is given to St. Elizabeth Home; Providence Day Nursery Association, $4,000, the income to be applied toward the maintenance of the Grace Memorial Home in Olneyville; St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, $3,000, the income to be applied toward the support of public worship therein; Rhode Island Episcopal Convention, $2,000, for the benefit of diocesan missions; the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, $2,000, for the benefit of domestic missions.

The testatrix, after providing for the payment of debts, funeral and testamentary expenses and the expense of suitable gravestones, makes the following absolute gifts:

To her niece, Hope Ives Powel, wife of Samuel Powel, Jr., of Newport, $25,000, and also her diamond earrings, diamond heart-shaped brooch, sapphire and diamond ring and all wearing apparel. To her great-nephew, Samuel Powel, Jr., son of the above-named Hope Ives Powel, $5,000. To her great-nephew, Thomas Ives Hare Powel, also a son of Hope Ives Powel, $5,000.

To her nephew, Horace Binney, now living in France, $20,000. To her niece, Hope Goddard Iselin, wife of C. Oliver Iselin, her emerald and diamond marquise ring.

To her niece, Madeline Ives Goddard, her watch, which formerly belonged to Marie Antoinette. To Elizabeth Cass Goddard, widow of her deceased brother, Francis W. Goddard, $3,000.

To her sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Silsbee, the silverware formerly belonging to her husband. To her niece, Martha Silsbee, 2nd., her ruby and diamond stickpin.

To her god-daughter, Mary Randolph, daughter of General Wallace Randolph, United States army, $3,000; to Isabel Bailey, wife of Charles E. Bailey, $4,000; to Washington Hoppin, $1,000; to H. May Burrough, $1,000.

The testatrix then makes several bequests to her servants and directs the executors to divide all the remainder of her jewelry, silver, glass, china, paintings, works of art, books, furniture and other personal and household effects between her relatives and friends, in the absolute discretion of her executors.

The will establishes a trust of $30,000 to be held by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company in trust during the life of her nephew, William Binney, Jr., for the benefit of his wife, child, children or more remote issue in such proportions as the trustees may determine. On failure of this trust the property follows the disposition of the residue.

The will establishes a trust of $25,000 to be held by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company for the benefit of the testatrix's great-nephew, Henry Ledyard Danielson (since deceased), for the term of his life, and upon his decease for the benefit of his father, Amos Lockwood Danielson, for the term of his life. The remainder upon the decease of both beneficiaries is given to Butler Hospital for the Insane.

All the residue of the estate is given by the testatrix absolutely and in fee simple one third to her brother, Robert H. I. Goddard, one third to the issue of her brother, William Goddard, and one third to the issue of her sister, Charlotte Hope Binney. There is a provision that in case of such heirs as have not attained the age of 21 years their interests shall be respectively held in trust by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company for their benefit until they either attain the age of 21 years or marry, upon which they are to receive their proportionate shares.

The will gives the trustee or trustees for the time being under the will the fullest powers of investment, sale and general management, and appoints Robert H. I. Goddard and William Binney, Jr., as executors.

A ROYAL "GOLDEN WEDDING."

The celebration of the golden wedding of the newly made King and Queen of Montenegro was the cause of most picturesque rejoicing at Cettigue. It began with a service in the little church in which Nicholas and his bride were married 50 years ago. The churchyard was lined on either hand by children and young girls carrying bouquets, and by a number of Moslem Albanians from the Podgoritza district, arrayed in red fez-braided jacket and white fustanella. A company of veterans of 1860 kept the approach to the churchyard. These gallant warriors who had fought with Nicholas in his earlier campaigns, retained the arms of that epoch—formidable blunderbusses—while all had yataghans in their belts. After the service the King and Queen and the royal party stood in the balcony of the palace, and an enthusiastic crowd passed before them. First came school children, then a long train of warriors in brilliant costumes, headed by the veterans of 1860. Men who had fought in the last war with Turkey followed, and representatives of the various nahis, or tribal districts, each group preceded by a standard bearer and chiefs. Some of the groups went by at the double, taking agile leaps with wild gesticulations. Next came the women of the various districts, and on their appearance the King and Queen descended into the open space before the palace and accepted their congratulations at close quarters.

A COLD FIELD DAY.

Artillery Shoot and Play Games, Married Men Winning Tug of War for Sullivan Cup.

The Newport Artillery returned in safety Monday evening from its field day, after anything but a fine-weather outing. The high wind of course cut down the possibility of good scores, but the appetites of the men were sharp when the call was sounded. The hike out was made via the railroad track, but there were no fatalities on the way and trains were allowed to pass without interference.

While details were on the range, shooting others made themselves as happy as possible with sports, base ball being most popular. Privates Watson and Ernest Durfee were wounded in this part of the program, the first being hit in the mouth and the latter in the side of the head. Surgeon Barker was on hand, to render first aid to the injured. Just before dinner a tug of war was held for the D. E. Sullivan cup, which the married men won with ease.

The dinner seemed to be all right and "Tom's" chowder went particularly well out in the cold. After dinner there was more shooting over the 200-yard range, but games were not so general and the boys were more given to hiking about and viewing the surrounding country. The command returned to the city late in the afternoon, having met the rain but not suffering from the few drops which fell.

The men in attendance are paid by the state, for their day's tour of duty, but are allowed to have their instruction in shooting at Coddington Point rather than at the less convenient place Rumford, where the National Guard goes.

OVER A DEVIOUS ROUTE.

Peddler's Outfit Travels Far and Distributes Vegetables All Along the Route of March.

Joseph R. Russin's peddler's outfit made things somewhat interesting for a large number of spectators this morning. It was on Third street when the first act began. Apparently the hook on one end of the whiffletree broke, throwing the work of drawing the wagon on one trace. There were traces of the fact that the horse did not like this and the wagon also seemed to resent it, for it swayed and traveled in various unexpected ways. Incidentally the contents of the wagon—corn, tomatoes, potatoes and other things—grew tired of their usual resting place and were distributed all along the route of march. This was somewhat devious, and no definite record is given, but it is known to have included Farewell street, Court House street, Hozier street, Spring street, Broadway, Edward street and West Broadway, where a stop was made at P. F. Clarke's blacksmith shop.

On the way another peddler, figuring up his morning's business in the quiet of Court House street, had a narrow squeeze, but escaped because there was room between the fence and his wagon for the Russin vehicle to travel. On Edward street, after trying C. A. Easterbrooks's cellar door, the other team grew tired of working and the horse pulled apart from the cart, but the cart became an automobile and traveled down the slight grade to the horse. Then Easton's stable received the outfit. The vegetables were gone.

The Allen cottage is closed for the season.

Mr. J. De F. Junkins, Jr., has returned to New York.

Mr. D. S. Newhall and family have closed their cottage, "Round House," at the Dumplings, and left for Philadelphia.

Mrs. A. M. Wetherill has closed her cottage on Bryer avenue and left for Georgia.

Monday's northeast blow and threatening weather made it unusually quiet about the island. With the exception of a few automobile parties there was little travel on the ferries, except those whose business compelled them to go.

Mr. H. W. Stokes and family, who have occupied the Hopking cottage on Bay View Drive this season, have left for New York.

The whistle on steamer Connecticut has been replaced by another, which is louder and of a deeper tone. As the old one has been in place about seven years those who constantly use the ferry and depend on the whistle were deceived this morning by the new one.

A man who did not give his name, but said he was from Pawtucket, was in town this morning, interviewing several of the prominent citizens in regard to a consolidation of the opposing ferry lines.

Lawton's trap were all that could be seen on the dock before a boat came in from Point Judith, with three barrels of flukes and three barrels of small herring which looked fit to be made into sardines, but nothing else, unless it were bait.

CONTEST GROWS WARMER.

Gilman of Boston in the Lead for Commander-in-Chief.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 20.—When the veterans attending the forty-fourth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic looked out their windows, this morning, they were disappointed to see rain. It began falling during the night and kept coming down intermittently during the early hours of the day.

Several of the organizations allied with the Grand Army opened their sessions today and other continued committee work, preliminary to the formal opening of business sessions. The National Council of Administration and the National Council of the Ladies' Woman's Relief Corps also went into session. On the steel pier the annual encampment of the Sons of Veterans was opened at 10 o'clock, with addresses of welcome and the reading of reports.

Practically all the associations that opened their business meetings today will continue them this afternoon. Tonight the semi-official session and greeting of the parent organization will be held. At this session Colonel Frank M. Sterrett, the executive director, will turn over the work of the local committees to Commander-in-Chief Samuel R. Van Sant of Minnesota. Governor Fort, on behalf of the state, and Mayor Story for the city, will formally welcome the delegates. The responses will be made by Commander-in-Chief Gilman of Boston, and John McElroy, of Washington, D. C., is growing warmer. All the old soldiers now on the grounds are practically lined up for one candiate or the other and the newly arriving veterans are hardly settled in their quarters before some supporters of a candiate wants to know how he stands on the election of a commander. Among the cities that are anxious for the next national encampment are Rochester, N. Y.; Los Angeles, Cal., Denver, Col., and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Fortunately the rain ceased before noon and the afternoon is clear and pleasant. The principal business was the consideration of resolutions. Indications are this afternoon that Colonel John E. Gilman of Boston will be elected next commander-in-chief. The New York delegation, it is said, has agreed to support the New England candidate in return for votes for Rochester as next year's encampment site, and with the states already pledged this is said to give Colonel Gilman a clear majority. Friends of John McElroy of Washington, the strongest rival of Colonel Gilman, declared today that they would not abandon hope until the official count had been made on the floor of the convention.

TO PROBE LORIMER ELECTION.

Members of Senate Sub-Committee Begin to Arrive in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Senators Robert J. Gamble, Republican, of South Dakota and Thomas H. Paynter, Democrat, of Kentucky, members of the senate sub-committee which is to investigate the election of William Lorimer to the United States Senate, arrived here today. Senators Burrows, Heyburn and Johnston having registered yesterday the arrival of Senators Gamble and Paynter brings the number of sub-committee present up to five. Senator Frazier, Democrat, of Tennessee is expected tonight or tomorrow.

Today's session, for the purpose of outlining the procedure of the inquiry, was scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock. Senator Lorimer accompanied by his attorney, Elbridge Hassey, called on Senator Burrows during the day to ascertain what will be required of him.

GOVERNMENT'S AVIATION PET.

The $30,000 Aeroplane a Popular Asset of the Signal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The $30,000 aeroplane, which the government acquired last year, is the most popular asset of the signal service these days. Almost everybody, figuratively, seems to want to see it. From many different parts of the country the mails bring requests to General Allen, the chief signal officer, for the use of the machine in contests and for a variety of purposes in showing off the government's aviation pet. In San Antonio, General Allen's assistants are engaged assiduously in experimental work with the machine, which once made Fort Meyer famous, but even that lone representative of the government's flying machine squadron is becoming antiquated for the more modern machines are more readily taken apart and re-assembled, and have other points not embraced in the government's aeroplane's galaxy of good qualities.

The signal service officers are really sorry that they cannot lend their machine in response to all incoming requests, but compliance would be impracticable. Incidentally there are great hopes among the signal service authorities that Congress at its next session will, through appropriations, help along the ideas of having this government align its flying machine work more on the liberal scale that France, Germany and other great powers have put into operation.

COMPETITION AGAIN DELAYED.

Weather Proves Unfavorable for Cross-Alps Aviation Flight.

BRIG, Switzerland, Sept. 20.—Today's weather was unfavorable for flying and the cross-Alps aviation competition was again delayed. Snow fell in the mountains during the night and this morning a strong wind was blowing through the Simplon pass and rain fell.

TO ELECT A NEW BISHOP.

Newport's Representation in the Diocesan Convention to be Held Wednesday.

The convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Rhode Island, to elect a bishop to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rt. Rev. William N. McVickar, will be held in Providence Wednesday. The Newport churches will be represented by their rectors and the delegates elected to the regular diocesan convention, as follows:

Trinity—Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector; George Gordon King, Clarence A. Carr, William H. Walcott, Thomas G. Brown, William S. Sherman, delegates.

Emmanuel—Rev. Emery H. Porter, D. D., rector; John M. Taylor, Darius Baker, William H. Clarke, Thomas F. Peckham, George W. Barlow, delegates.

St. George's—Rev. George Vernon Dickey, rector; Peter King, William S. Slocum, John H. Mustard, Willis C. Goodale, delegates.

St. John's—Rev. Charles J. Beattie, rector; Augustus H. Swan, Lars Larsen, Hamilton Fish Webster, James T. Hathaway, delegates.

In the absence of any of the regularly elected delegates, substitutes, also chosen at the Easter election, may fill the vacancies to make a full representation from each church.

COLLECTING BACK TAXES.

Tax Collector Highbee is collecting some of last year's taxes and is ready to collect more. He has sent notices to all delinquents that he proposes to sell their property if the taxes for 1909 are not paid by tonight, and a large number have responded. The collector is acting on the assumption that the Representative Council desires all taxes collected up to date, and it seems to be up to taxpayers to produce the cash or petition for a remission. The Council will undoubtedly remit the taxes of any who cannot pay, but that is a matter for the Council and not the collector to decide.

ROGERS HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

At the first meeting of the Rogers High School Athletic Association, Monday afternoon Charles Underwood was chosen president, the vice presidency fell to Albert Knox, Stanley Ward received the secretaryship and John Hoar was unanimously elected treasurer. These are representatives of the Junior Middle, Senior Middle and Senior classes in the school. They are all well known, and are prominent figures in the athletic field, and so are well qualified to hold the offices in an association which has for its object the advancement of athletics in the school.

The football team is slowly organizing. Daily squads of new candidates are given stiff practice at the Basin or Civic League lot, and the raw material is gradually being worked into shape. However, the majority of candidates for the team are boys who have had some experience in the game before coming to the school. A few of the veterans are back and more are hoped for. With the help of these and the co-operation of the new men a good team may be expected. The team is under a great disadvantage in not having the services of an experienced coach, but in spite of this drawback the boys are working hard in preparation for their first game, which will take place within two weeks, at least. Manager Earl McLennan has high hopes of winning the first game.

DIES OF CEREBRAL HEMORRHAGE

Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, and others will speak and President Burton will deliver his inaugural address. The delegates will then be tendered a reception by President and Mrs. Burton. It is expected that a large number of alumnae will return to Smith for the occasion. The college year opens next Thursday, September 22.

CITY COMMITTEE ORGANIZES.

Dates Announced for the Caucuses, of Which There Will be One in Each Assembly District.

The Democratic city committee Monday evening organized for the campaign by the selection of the following officers:

Chairman—Jeremiah P. Mahoney.
Secretary—U. Frank Albro.

Tax date for the caucuses for the state convention was fixed for Monday, September 26. The city convention will be Tuesday, September 27, and the state convention Thursday, September 29. The caucuses will elect delegates to a city convention, which will select delegates to the state convention; also delegates to the district convention, which will nominate a candidate for Congress, in which Newport is this year especially interested; also, nominate a candidate for state senator from this city.

There will be one caucus in each Assembly district, with one moderator, but there will be a clerk for each voting district in each Assembly district—that is, there will be two clerks in the Second and three each in the Third and Fourth districts.

Later there will be district caucuses, to nominate candidates for the Assembly districts. There are also to be selected ward and district committees.

The Republicans will probably not announce their caucus dates until after the date for the state convention has been selected and announced.

ALMOST LIKE WINTER.

There were signs of winter Monday night. By 4:30 the temperature had dropped to 54, the rain had begun to try to fall—that is all it did for several hours—and the raw northeast wind made one long for the pleasant weather of Sunday. The temperature continued to drop until at 8:30 it was down to 50, and the wind just howled at times. It was anything but summer.

This morning the wind veered to the northwest, the sun came out and it began to look more pleasant. In the meantime the fishermen say it looks to them as though the northeaster was driving all the fish out of the bay.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS OLGA CONVERSE.

Miss Olga Converse has recently returned from Italy, where she spent a year with her aunt, Miss Blood. She is one of the most attractive girls in Washington society, piquant and talented; is a clever dancer and has been premier danseuse at all charity plays. She made her debut about two years ago. No date has as yet been set for the wedding.

BUILDINGS GREATLY DAMAGED.

Two Bombs in War Between Two Factions of Gamblers Exploded.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Bombs Nos. 40 and 42 in the war between two factions of gamblers were exploded last night in two places five miles apart, within 45 minutes of each other. In neither case was any person seriously injured, though the damage to buildings was considerable. The first projectile ripped a wide opening directly above the entrance to Frieberg's dance hall in Twenty-second street, and the second explosion tore a great opening in the roof of the Woodlawn Cafe, Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, driving frightened men and women to the streets in a panic. It is believed the second bomb was intended for an alleged pool room adjoining the Woodlawn Cafe.

For three years the police have been in a turmoil over mysterious explosions which have caused serious injury to a number of persons and thousands of dollars damage to property. The police believe the bombs have all been thrown by the same man, but so far they have not been able to apprehend him. Detectives who have been working on the case believe that both bombs last night were thrown from the elevated railroad platforms, as both buildings are near the elevated structure.

THE BETTER SORT.

Senator Shively, apropos of patriotism, and the Fourth of July, told at a South Bend banquet a war story.

"A private," he said, "became very homesick on campaign, and went to headquarters for a furlough.

"'What do you want a furlough for?' the colonel asked.

"'What do I want a furlough for?' the private answered bitterly. 'Why, colonel, I ain't seen my wife for over three months!'

"'Oh, that's nothing,' said the colonel. 'I haven't seen my wife for more than three years.'

"'Well,' said the soldier, 'that may be, colonel, but me and my wife ain't that kind.'"

MIDDLETOWN.

Town Council Again Declines to Take Action Regarding the Arnold Circulating Library.

[Reg. Correspondence of The News.]

The regular meeting of the town council and court of probate was held at the town hall Monday afternoon; present, Arthur W. Chase, William R. Hunter, John H. Coe and Francis J. Coggeshall.

Arthur W. Chase reported the bridge in the highway near the Hanging Rocks to have been re-constructed, and was directed to remove the old material and given an option to purchase it for not less than $5.

A petition was received from Robert M. Wetherell and 19 others, asking for repairs to the roadbed at the south end of Aquidneck Avenue. The matter was held for further consideration and the council voted to inspect the road Thursday afternoon.

Alfred H. Hazard was present in relation to the removal of the Arnold Circulating Library from the Peabody schoolhouse to the Berkeley guild house. This matter was discussed at the August meeting and the Council then decided not to interfere, and declined to take action. After hearing Mr. Hazard, the council announced that it still adhered to its former decision, and preferred that the town should first express its disposition as to the care of the library. Probably an application will be made to the town meeting, to be held November 8, for the town to take charge of the library, provide some building for its retention and some means for its circulation. Mr. Hazard represented that the library could not remain long at the guild house and that he had been so informed by the persons in charge.

The following accounts were allowed and ordered paid from the town treasury: Elmer D. Sisson, for constructing bridge in Brown's lane, near the entrance to St. Columba's Cemetery, $74; constructing new roadbed in Oliphant Lane, $192.25; William S. Caswell, highway repairs, $168.63; services as police constable, $32.90; Daniel A. Carter, highway repairs, $57.28; Simon Hart, blank book for land records, $20; Arthur A. Brigham, services as janitor and police constable, $22.90; Fillmore Coggeshall, Jr., services as town sergeant, $25.20; Peckham Brothers, crushed stone, $92.90; Elisha A. THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes." Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

McDuffe & Co., stair builders, and Harry McManus, sash and doors. The cause of the fire is unknown. Highly inflammable material and difficulty in reaching the flames allowed the fire to get a big headway.

Most Extreme Measures

Your kitchen sinks, the water closets and bowls and all other plumbing in your homes should be periodically disinfected. To do this perfectly and to kill positively all germs of disease, use two to three tablespoonfuls of to a pail of water. This amount makes a very active disinfectant.

A tablespoonful to a pail is sufficient for ordinary house cleaning, such as washing the paint, rugs and linoleums in order to insure perfect cleanliness and health.

The latter amount added to the bath keeps the skin clean and healthy and also prevents the invasion of any germs of disease, should there be existing scratches, cuts, chafes or abrasions.

Sold only in yellow packages by druggists and grocers, 10c., 25c., 50c., 75c. and $1.00. Beware of imitations.

battleships suddenly broke out all their searchlights. The powerful rays swept the ocean for the targets which were being towed at unknown ranges, and which represented the enemy's torpedo craft. As soon as a torpedo boat was spotted the battleships secondary battery began a rain of three and seven inch projectiles into the object. The course of the shells was easily followed as the fleet was firing with projectiles having attached to them "tracers," which consist of an attachment of burning powder causing a continuous light as the missile flies through the air. Many of the targets were completely riddled with the shots from the guns. A light rain and some mist made the work of the gunners somewhat difficult, but nevertheless the results obtained were considered generally good.

PLATFORM STILL UNDER DISCUSSION.

power for the public utilities commission. The plank simply states that the Republican party favors making such amendments to the present public utilities law as experience may determine to be necessary, including rate-making power. The platform does not declare for direct primaries, and a plank favoring the physical valuation of the railroads was defeated.

When the leaders went to bed early this morning everything was at sixes and sevens, so far as the platform was concerned, and the air was full of rumors that Vivian M. Lewis might refuse to take the nomination for governor. This threat, however, was not taken seriously by those familiar with the situation.

The sub-committee appointed by the state committee to draft a platform was composed of United States Senator Kean, Congressman Garner and State Senator Wakelee, all three decided "stand patters." The rough draft of a platform prepared by them when submitted to Mr. Lewis did not meet with his approval. It was not sufficiently progressive and did not harmonize with the speech of acceptance he was prepared to deliver to the convention, after his nomination.

It was 12:20 p. m. when the convention was called to order by State Chairman Franklin Murphy. He presented Attorney General Edmund Wilson for temporary chairman, who aroused the enthusiasm of the convention by characterizing Republican leaders mentioning "the flaming Roosevelt" and the "wise and tactful Taft." Mr. Wilson referred to insurgency and said there are two kinds of insurgents, the kind that fights within the party and the kind that fights without. He said two main things are responsible for insurgency, Cannonism and the tariff. Of Cannonism he said that no man is bigger than his party; if the rules of Congress are too drastic they should be changed. He defended the present tariff and said if it needs any changing the changes should not be permitted to be made by the enemies of protection.

LEADS PROGRESSIVES.

Primary Elections Being Held in Buffalo and Other Cities.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Primary elections are being held today in Buffalo, in cities of the second class throughout the state, and in other cities where the party committees have elected to come under the primary law. Voters of both parties are balloting for delegates to the various conventions within their districts and setting in motion the machinery by which their delegates to the state conventions will be chosen. In this feature of the primaries their interest for the general public centres, the Republican primaries in particular having a strong bearing upon the fight between the "old guard" and "progressive" elements in the party, the latter lead by Theodore Roosevelt for control of the Saratoga convention.

Democratic contests in the various cities were largely confined to leadership battles. Numbers of such contests likewise supplied the chief point of interest at Republican primaries in municipalities, where the election was conceded in advance to the ruling party element.

NOT DISCUSSED BEFORE GRISCOM

Knows Nothing of Endorsement by Convention of Taft for 1912.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Chairman Lloyd C. Griscom of the Republican county committee said today that the Taft-Roosevelt conference yesterday would not have the effect of changing in the least the plans of the progressives in their campaign against the "old guard," and for control of the state convention. If the endorsement by the convention of President Taft for 1912 was discussed Mr. Griscom said it was not in his presence.

10—Gains of ⅛ to a full point were made by the principal active stocks in the first few minutes of trading. Dealings were fairly active and well distributed. Union Pacific, Reading, Interborough Metropolitan preferred, and American Smelting made one-point advance, and St. Paul, New York Central, Missouri Pacific and Pacific Mail large fractions. Louisville & Nashville declined ⅝, and Central Railroad of New Jersey sold at a decline of 5.

11—A handful of specialties moved up sharply, but the usual market leaders did not rise much over the opening figures. Manhattan gained 2¼, Pacific Mail 1⅜, Consolidated Gas 1¾, and Southern Railway preferred, American Sugar, Tennessee Copper and American Linseed 1.

Noon—Dealings in stocks were restricted to professional hands. The rise in prices was in consequence of resistance yesterday to operations for the decline. The advance in turn attracted selling orders and limited the movement. Northern Pacific and Mercantile Marine preferred rose 1, but the general list receded from the first hour's price. Bonds were firm. Money on call steady at 1½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 5½ to 6 per cent. Exchanges $271,677,427; balances $11,766,780.

BURNED, BUT TO BE RE-BUILT.

Plant of Aquidneck Soap Factory Totally Destroyed.

Bright Illumination and Lively Blaze, Which Endangers Surrounding Structures.

The plant of the Aquidneck Manufacturing Company, at the corner of Halsey and Rutgers streets, was totally destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. An hour after the ringing of the alarm, while the firemen were still at work, Mr. D. J. McGowan, president of the company, announced that the works would be rebuilt at once. Mr. Arthur Holly was at that time talking with Mr. McGowan regarding the new structure and will draw plans for it at once.

This afternoon work was begun on the new building on the lot near the structure burned this morning. Post holes were dug for the supports and work will be pushed to an early completion. The clearing away of the burned material will be carried on as expeditiously as possible, in order not to interfere with the construction of the new building.

The alarm came in at 2:27 o'clock from box 212, at the corner of Hall and Van Zandt avenues, being pulled by Mr. Dexter Burkinshaw and a party of men who while on Washington square had their attention called to the illumination in the northern sky by Officer Weaver. They took a cab and drove as rapidly as possible to the locality, which was more than a mile away and considerable distance from the box.

Officer Esheck was on Broadway when he noticed the glare, and on foot made his way in the direction of the fire. He could have pulled a box immediately upon discovering the illumination, but did not feel justified, knowing how deceptive fires are, and plodded on in an endeavor to locate it more definitely, traveling more than half a mile to the box. The men from the square and the officer struck into the "swamp district" about together, and at that time, while the entire structure was a light blaze and sparks were being showered dangerously upon the roofs of the little dwellings in the neighborhood, there did not appear to be an individual awake in the entire locality. The first person they saw was a man living about 200 feet from the burning building, whose house was showered by sparks. He asked out of the window to have his cow cut loose and was told he would better look after his horse.

When the firemen started on their run the streets for a mile distant were illuminated nearly as well as by day, and this was well, for out in Garfield street and beyond, in the absence of streets except in name, it was pretty perilous going.

The firemen and nearly every one else upon arrival gave attention to imperilled buildings in the line of sparks. The high wind was driving these in sheets, and except for the general dampness there would have been little less than a conflagration. As it was, there were numerous fires to be extinguished on roofs, fences and other places. A fence alongside the Ling Klim Klub took fire, but this was beaten out by a sailor, and after daylight smouldering embers broke into a blaze again and received attention.

Two long lines of hose were laid, and for these there seemed to be nothing to do but put out the embers, as every part of the structure was on fire. When President McGowan arrived he called the attention of Chief Kirwin to various portions of the plant where there might be some salvage if they were cooled, but he was particularly exercised about the office contents, where were kept the books of the company with no safe to protect them. While the building was burned up clean in this corner, a crew of searchers succeeded in digging out particles of a number of books, which it is hoped will give the company some basis on which to make up the accounts.

The first arrivals on the scene heard a muffled explosion, and when the firemen arrived there was a natural feeling that with naptha and a steam boiler in the intense heat there might be more explosions, but they did not materialize. The naphtha and soap stock had much to do with the intensity of the illumination, and made an unusually white light. The building itself did not make any great pretensions, having first been built as an experimental station. Twice it has been added to, and besides being equipped with machinery for the work the structure was at the time of the fire terribly stocked with crude material and finished stock.

For two years the company, which manufactures the Naptha Cream Soap and is one of Newport's few industries, has had an up-hill struggle, but during the past summer conditions improved, and orders have been coming in faster than they could be filled. It is for this reason that, just as they were seeing daylight ahead, the fire comes as a great blow to both Mr. McGowan and Mr. Joseph S. Milne, who is associated with him.

The latter had a bad cold and did not arrive on the scene until late. Neither these two nor Superintendent Mills could give any plausible reason for the fire. They said the electric current was cut off from the building when it was closed Monday afternoon and the fires under the boiler had been previously attended to. They naturally could see but one cause—incendiarism. There were some evidences, when taking the direction of the wind and the condition of affairs when the department arrived, that the fire started in or about the boiler house, which was a detached building.

The plant as located was the last structure out in the swamp district, and while on the corner of Rutgers street that street is caught but virgin swamp. The firemen were obliged to hold fast to the dump fill, for if they stepped into the street just over the fence they landed in the swamp. Those who did not approach the fire from the narrow way had rough going and barbed wire to contend with at every turn.

There was but $2,000 insurance on the property, because of the high rates. The plant is estimated to have been worth $10,000, and in addition the place was filled with stock, crude and manufactured, and its destruction means the loss of as much more.

Naturally the fire when it started made rapid progress, but there is comment over the distribution of the police, none of whom were in a position to see it, even from a distance, until the whole heavens were illuminated. Had there been a patrolman on outer Broadway or the upper Point the flames would have been seen early, and the swamp district itself is one which some think of sufficient importance to be patrolled regularly.

This morning at 7 o'clock a multitude of children turned out and played about the ruins. There is a large tank, supported on badly charred timbers, and the children insisted in going dangerously near this. The police station was telephoned for an officer to come out to protect their lives, and replied that the child was not down. At 9 o'clock another message was sent and the station replied that a man was being sent. At 10 the station said an officer was on his way, and half an hour later, after the children were in school, the officer who has this as a portion of his extensive beat appeared on the scene.

After the fire was over it was found that the little shed to the west of the factory, where the large tank of naphtha was kept, was untouched. A man named Lewis, apparently the first in the neighborhood to awake, says that when he first jumped out of bed the fire was all in the northwest corner, next the swamp. In that corner were stored barrels and boxes for the packing of the finished product, and the owners say there was nothing about that part of the plant, which was partitioned off from the rest, which would be responsible for a fire.

This noon President McGowan stated that by hustling during the morning they had reached the point where they hoped to be making soap by the end of the week. Another large addition was contemplated this fall and a quantity of new machinery had already been ordered, while during the past two months several new pieces of machinery have been added and of course were destroyed by the fire.

In addition to the loss of stock, a large amount of advertising matter and labels have been destroyed, which means much to the concern. The postman delivered a number of orders this morning at the ruins and this gave the management courage, for it is orders for which they have been working and of late they have been coming without much effort and from large users whose trade means a great deal.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Ancient Order of Hibernians Planning Mass Meeting of Catholic Irish Societies.

At a meeting of the Newport County Board, Ancient Order of Hibernians, the following county officers were elected:

County President—Patrick Costello.
Vice President—Edward C. Sullivan.
Recording Secretary—Dr. P. E. Clarke.
Financial Secretary—Nicholas Morrisey.
Treasurer—Thomas Dowd.

A committee was appointed to see if arrangements could be made with Congressman-elect D. J. McGillicuddy, of the Second Maine district, to speak at a mass meeting of the Catholic Irish societies of this city, and also to see what arrangements could be made for such a meeting. The idea is to have a big re-union of all such societies, with some well known speaker as the chief attraction. It seems certain that such a meeting will be held, the only question being how many societies will participate and who will be the speaker.

Court Pride, No. 12, Foresters of America, at its meeting Monday evening elected the following officers for the ensuing six months:

Chief Ranger—T. F. Gough.
Sub-Chief Ranger—J. P. Fagan.
Treasurer—R. A. Randall.
Financial Secretary—W. J. Shea.
Senior Woodward—P. J. Connell.
Junior Woodward—T. J. Ryan.
Trustees—Louis Schafer, J. E. Sullivan, P. R. Condon.
Physician—E. V. Murphy, M. D.

AT THE THEATRES.

"His New Family," one of the feature pictures at the Bijou Theatre, is a blending of comedy, pathos and heart interest, producing in turn smiles, tears and laughter. The scenic effects shows the little village home, the coast of France and mining scenes in Arizona. The other pictures are "Won in the Fifth," "The Anarchists Grip" and "The Dream Pill." The vaudeville acts include Hindu Sam and Son in oriental pastimes and comedy, and Rastus Brown, colored comedian and eccentric dancing, assisted by Miss Harrison, with illustrated songs by Miss Grace Davenport.

New pictures at the Star Theatre are "The Two Bears," a dramatic subject; "Who Killed John Dare," a detective story; "The Taming of Jane," an imp feature; "Mother" and an instructive picture entitled "Military Tournament of the Queen's Own Hussars." New songs with duet chorus will be introduced by Quinn and Richards.

THE LONGWOOD OPEN TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

An open lawn tennis tournament for women, comprising singles, handicap singles, doubles and mixed doubles, will start at the Longwood Cricket Club Sept. 26. This competition has been played yearly at Longwood for the past eight years, and a number of the leading players of New York and elsewhere are expected to compete with the best local players.

In the singles, the first challenge trophy having been finally won last year by Mrs. Barger Wallach, the second challenge trophy is offered by the club, and the winner of the tournament will be called upon to play Mrs. Barger Wallach for possession of the new trophy for the year. It will become the property of any one winning it for three years, not necessarily consecutive. In addition to the trophy, suitable prizes will be awarded in each event. The tournament will be played on dirt courts.

MRS. HOWE'S ADDRESS.

One of the Features of the Civic League's Annual Meeting.

Reports of the President and Heads of Departments and Election of Officers.

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Civic League, in the Channing Parlors Monday afternoon.

The president, Miss Ellen F. Mason, in summing up the work of the League during the past year, pointed out that the school gardens and other experiments in the nature of object lessons involved large expense, and that the treasury must needs be replenished by the generosity of friends if these undertakings are to be carried on successfully. She spoke of the influence which women are beginning to exercise all over the country in civic matters, and urged upon the women of Newport the duty of assuming their share in the great movement for reform.

"The old sentiment," she said, "no longer exists that it is unseemly for women to bear a share in matters by custom so long assigned to men alone It is now commonly recognized that they are, on the contrary, eminently fitted to deal with municipal problems. The nature of their ordinary avocations makes them peculiarly keen to observe breaches of city ordinances and alive to maladministration of city affairs. And for this reason it is they who may logically be expected to discover and to have applied the most effectual remedies.

"As a matter of act, in more than one city the initiatory steps in reform have been taken by women and by them brought to successful issue. But there are few who could or would attempt such a task single-handed, nor is it probable that it could thus be as well accomplished. Only when women are banded together in one great concerted whole, and without distinction of position, race or creed stand shoulder to shoulder in the struggle for civic betterment is a force set in motion which will prove itself irresistible."

Miss Eleanor Barker, the recording secretary, read the report of the last annual meeting, and also of the three public meetings held during the year.

Miss Barker, the retiring secretary, then read the annual report, in which she spoke of many hope-less looking wrongs which have been attacked by the League and of the need of more members and more workers. She also expressed her gratitude to the members of the board and her good wishes for the future success of the League.

In the absence of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. P. A. Jacoby, her report was read by Mrs. Frank M. Greenlaw.

Mrs. Greenlaw, the treasurer, then read her annual report, which showed a balance of $7.

For the committee on publication, Alfred G. Langley spoke of the mailing list of the Civic League Bulletin as numbering 259 and of the cost of publication as $220 per annum. The Bulletin does not pay for itself, by $100. It receives appreciative notice from outside and many requests for exchange, but it needs 250 subscribers, more contributors and a few devoted workers.

For the membership committee Mrs. M. S. W. Marsh reported a membership of approximately 260.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, and Miss Reggio of Boston, spoke for about 12 minutes, the audience rising as the venerable woman passed in and out, and giving a rising vote of thanks for her address. Mrs. Howe's address, in full, was as follows:

"It is hardly necessary for me, in addressing you at this meeting, to dwell upon the new fields of public service which the progress of the last 50 years has opened to women. This is sufficiently evident in the name which calls us together, the Civic League, a band of women united in view of the public weal, and having in mind those good results which should appeal to all good citizens. For the well-being of society cannot be attained without constant and efficient co-operation on the part of those who have it at heart.

"The start in life is separated by a great variety of tastes and pre-dispositions. Some of us delight in the study of public questions, and in the constant effort for a better understanding of them. Others, alas, too many of us, are indifferent to anything beyond their personal proclivities. Can we be indulged in this indifference? No, we cannot. The distinguishing trait of humanity is progressive desire. We must march with the army which goes ever on, discovering in woman's destiny new opportunities and encountering therewith the development of new powers.

"In this splendid advance, who would be left behind, to be not only inactive and useless, but become a stumbling block to others? We have no choice. Society needs to exert all its moral power in order to attain its highest objects, and some of that power is invested in each one of us. We cannot be allowed to waste it. A man or woman brought up on the Bible—it is natural for me, when I seek for great lessons of wisdom, to turn to its illuminated pages. In the present connection, I find a parable which conveys a great and gracious lesson, I mean the New Testament story of the ten virgins, of whom five were wise and as many foolish. The first five showed their wisdom by forethought. The others took things easily, and thought that they should get through all right.

"There was the opportunity, like our new and wonderful opportunity, to serve the human family by the legiti-

COMPLETES ACTIVE SERVICE.

Retirement of Rear Admiral Winslow, Former Executive Officer at Training Station.

Rear Admiral Herbert Winslow, U. S. N., formerly executive officer of the Naval Training Station and the Constellation, will Thursday of this week, September 22, complete his active service in the navy, reaching the compulsory retirement age of 62 years. He has seen 45 years of service on sea and ashore, in all parts of the world. He was born in Massachusetts and entered the Naval Academy in July, 1865, graduating in 1869, and being assigned to duty on the Sabine. During his service he was on the Richmond, of the European fleet; the Narragansett of the North Pacific; the Benicia and Lackawanna of the Pacific fleet; training ship Portsmouth and the Powhatan of the North Atlantic station, all during the "seventies." Subsequent duties included ordnance duty at Washington and duty at the Naval War College, service on the Monocacy, Yorktown, Constellation, St. Louis, Fern, Marcellus and Solace, and at the training station, Newport.

During the war with Spain he served on the St. Louis, and was placed in command of despatch boat Fern in May, 1898. When the new battleship Kearsarge was completed in 1907 Captain Winslow was placed in command. He was on duty at the Naval Training Station from 1898 to 1900, and was several years a member of the class of officers at the Naval War College. His last duty was as president of the naval court-martial at Boston, and previous to his promotion to the rank of rear admiral, last year, he was the captain and executive officer at the Charlestown navy yard.

Rear Admiral Winslow was the son of the famous Rear Admiral Winslow, who commanded the old Kearsarge in the battle which ended the career of Confederate cruiser Alabama.

COMING OF "THE MERRY WIDOW."

Henry W. Savage's production of "The Merry Widow," the Viennese operetta, will be presented this week at the Opera House. The life of the merry comedy with its alluring music seems unending, and this particular production of Mr. Savage's is pronounced better than ever.

The cast now appearing is regarded as equally as good as before, if not superior. Mabel Wilbur is the fascinating Sonia. She is good looking, has an excellent voice, is possessed of dramatic talent and dances as only a Sonia should. Charles Meakins is the Prince Danilo. His excellent dancing and singing and his manly grace and thorough masculinity have won him much favor. The old favorite, Robert E. Graham, hero of "The Little Tycoon" and "Florodora," and the creator of the part of Baron Popoff in the original New York production of "The Merry Widow," is again playing that part. Fred Frear, another original of the New York company, is in his part of Nish again.
